No buffer road for residents

PLEASANTON — Seventeen Del Valle Parkway families didn't get the frontage road they wanted Monday night.

Instead the city council voted 4-1 to go ahead with developing a full four lane divided parkway which eventually will link Hopyard Road to Stanley Boulevard at some future date.

The parkway now is only at half width or less because only part of one side of the road is developed. Morrison Homes won approval Monday night to build 65 homes across the parkway and the big issue for the residents was the width and design of the parkway.

The residents want the asphalt strip in front of their homes converted to a frontage road, similar to the one next to Santa Rita Road across from Amador High School.

Director of Engineering Services Don Sooby opposed that idea. Just as with the Santa Rita Road design, there is not enough room for a buffer between the main roadway and the frontage road. That will cause intersection accidents, said Sooby.

The residents disagreed. Morrison Homes designed a frontage road into its plans at one point and that was perfectly fine with the residents. Things have come to a sorry state when the developer gives better accommodation to existing residents than the city's own staff does, said one resident.

Ron Morrow, 4593 Del Valle Parkway, said the staff's study of alternatives was, in his neighbors' opinion, "unrealistic and done with prejudice and bias." He claimed the route adopted Monday night was presented at previous meetings "with only positive conclusions," while the alternatives were discussed "primarily with negative objections."

Sooby said that another route favored by many could be accomplished along the banks of the Arroyo Del Valle, but it would mean acquisition of $200,000 worth of property. Most council members agreed that would be too much to pay for a rerouting.

Council Member Ken Mercer was the lone opponent to the approval, believing that more time should be spent in an effort to find a solution. In view of many months discussion of the issue and participation by residents over the past four years, Council Member Joyce LeClaire doubted that anything more could be explored.

Santa Rita adding more women aides

Alameda County Bureau

OAKLAND — County sheriff Thomas Houchins will supplement his Santa Rita force with six additional women deputies this year and another six after July 1.

The six to be hired in the next two months are in response to a near riot in the women's quarters last February that touched off investigations by the county grand jury and a trio of municipal court judges.

The six to be hired next fiscal year already were tucked into Houchins' 1977-78 budget.

County supervisors voted unanimously for the extra crew, but not until Santa Rita Chief William Foster and grand jury foreman David Cregue made personal pleas before the board yesterday.

The six hired this year will work a remodeled, pre-trial barracks for women inmates. Next year's budget calls for three deputies for the barracks "in order to complete post-staffing of this area," according to county administrator Loren Enoch.

Another will supplement the lone deputy assigned to women prisoners in the sewing and ironing annex, and another will be used to take female inmates to the clinic.

Outer space tests

Month-long ordeal for NASA is over

'It got to me' she admits

MOUNTAIN VIEW — A 27-day ordeal of tests ended yesterday for Carol Pruitt of Dublin who volunteered to undergo experiments for space being conducted by NASA-Ames Research Center at Moffett Field in Mountain View, California.

Pruitt was one of 10 Bay Area women between ages 35 and 45 finally selected for the project. All volunteered. They applied six months ago along with 200 other women in response to a newspaper advertisement by NASA-Ames. None have technical backgrounds.

None of the women had any adverse after effects from the testing, according to NASA doctors.

The final round of tests involved nine days of complete bed rest. This was to simulate weightlessness in space.

The main objective of this last experiment was two-fold. One was to determine how weightlessness might affect the body in general for this age group and sex. The other was to find out how women in this age bracket react to reentry. Rides in a human centrifuge were given to find out the latter.

These test results and others will help set medical standards for passengers who may ride NASA's Space Shuttle in the 1980's. Other age groups of women and men have been tested to determine their reactions. More testing is planned.

Prior to the actual nine days of complete bed rest, the 10 volunteers underwent nine days of controlled observation. Following the bed rest, five days were set aside for recovery plus more testing.

During the total bedrest period, the women were not allowed to raise their heads except to eat. Then they could only prop up on one elbow.

During the 27 days of testing, six basic experiments were used to test the women. They involved a flight simulator, human centrifuge, exercise, lower body negative pressure (LBNP), lean body mass, and short-term memory search task.

Plutonium airlift ban a possibility

LIVERMORE — Concern over "inadequate" testing of plutonium containers has spurred city officials to take a closer look at the possibility of closing the airport to plutonium traffic.

Last week council asked personnel at Lawrence Livermore Laboratory if testing of the containers with 30 foot drops could be increased to a simulated air accident with a 1,000 foot drop.

The Energy Research and Development Administration (ERDA), which has responsibility for such shipments, is funding testing on "accident resistant" containers and expects data from Sandia Laboratory in Albuquerque, N.M., later this year.

City Manager Bill Parness Monday told council ERDA expects the "failsafe" containers to be ready by October.

"As a city enterprise can we forbid certain flights in and out of the airport," asked Councilman Glen Dahlbacka.

City Attorney Gary Reiners told him the Federal Aviation Agency has placed various conditions and preempts jurisdiction.

City Manager Bill Parness noted Livermore is required by federal law to maintain the airport for public purposes and asked if council could legally declare some flights to be dangerous. Reiners was instructed to review the legal aspects.

Parness said Fire Chief Jack Baird also had objections to the flights for fire fighting purposes. Baird was unavailable for comment.

CB radios played part in killings

Alameda County Bureau

OAKLAND — The long, nefarious plot to kill the Braeseke family began last summer when "Yours Truly" met "The Phantom 309" across the airwaves of their CB radios, according to a deputy district attorney.

"Yours Truly" was Barry Braeseke, 21, who stands trial this week for the triple slaying of his parents and grandfather last Aug. 23 in their Dublin home.

"The Phantom 309" was 16-year-old David Barker, found guilty last month and facing life in prison.

Their meeting climaxed Braeseke's search for an accomplice to help quiet the hate for his 43-year-old father, Floyd, deputy district attorney Michael Cardoza said yesterday in his opening statement to jurors.

Rose show correction

One addition and several corrections to results printed earlier have been provided by the First National Bank, sponsors of the Pleasanton Rose Show which concluded here on Sunday.

Omitted in the first release of Blue Ribbon Winners were the names of Mr. and Mrs. Albert E. Welham of Pleasanton. They had a first in One Pink Rose and a first place in One Lavender Rose, in addition to numerous other prize winners.

Also, the sponsors note that all of the winners listed in that first release received Blue Ribbons for first places including Joseph Dodd of Dublin, Edna Mohr, George Cooley, Daniel Vandagriff and George Lydiken, all of Pleasanton. These had been incorrectly listed as second place winners.

Banning the ban

There's been no rush to end a building ban imposed in the Valley six months ago by the Regional Water Quality Control Board.

Though Valley agencies have agreed on a plan to clear up the sewage woes that precipitated the ban, no one has formally asked that it be lifted.

In Dublin, officials say they can't obtain additional sewer hookups for any new buildings. Over in Livermore, the city manager says no one's beating down the door for building permits. For details, see page 3.

Review Amador budget

A review of the 1977-78 Amador Valley High School District budget is on tap tonight at the Dublin High School library.

Doug Rose, assistant superintendent for business services, will outline the budget starting at 7:30 p.m. The meeting is open to the public and sponsored by the Dublin High School Parents Club.

Hurts hay

Rain rain go away

The rainfall we all prayed for may not be much help against the drought, but it is causing problems for farmers and ranchers.

The unusual May rains are ruining the hay crop. Most has already been harvested and is drying out and curing, but increased moisture threatens to create mildew which destroys the feed value.

Bob Roan of the U.S. Soil Conservation Service in Livermore says the threat exists statewide and may force feed prices higher.

The late season showers also affects farmers who rely on irrigation. Fields are too wet and muddy for their machinery, so farmers must wait for the ground to dry out before planting begins.

"The only good it'll do is to reduce fire hazard for awhile," Roan lamented.

Mun Mar, general manager of the Zone 7 Flood Control and Water Conservation District, yesterday said the last few days' rain has had little effect on water levels in reservoirs.

Rainfall is about 50 per cent of normal for the season, Mar says, but that is not the whole story. "It's not rainfall so much, it's what you get from runoff." The dry ground is soaking up most of the light showers, he says.

The amount of water used for outdoor landscape irrigation, mainly watering lawns, is markedly decreased during rainy periods. But local water consumption is up from recent levels.

Consumers in the Valley had reduced water usage 17 per cent in February and by 32 per cent in March. Water savings in April amounted to only 14 per cent less than last year's levels.

Total rainfall this month in Pleasanton has amounted to .72-inches, with only a trace recorded yesterday.

Livermore bans smoking—sort of LIVERMORE — City council Monday approved a smoking ban for publicly used buildings in this city, agreeing the resolution would have no teeth for enforcement and would require voluntary compliance.

Noting the "problem of balancing rights of smokers and rights of non smokers," Councilman John Staley said he favored asking local businesses to set aside 50 per cent of their space for non smoking sections, when possible.

Council also agreed to support SB500 which would allow general law cities such as Livermore to pass legislation creating a total ban on smoking in public places.

City Attorney Gary Reiners outlined problems with enforcement, potential for disruption and private disputes, and "an inordinate political pressure" concerning victimless crimes.

Audience member Don Brown called the proposed legislation a "useless law" that creates another "victimless crime."

"It is one more piece of trivia for the police to be concerned with," he said. "They should be involved with more important work."

"This is not a victimless crime," retorted another member of the audience, Mrs. N. Hughes. "Non smokers are subject to damage from the smoke of smokers."

Mrs. Hughes, a teacher at East Avenue School who discusses the dangers of smoking with her students, encouraged many of her students to write to council urging support of the no smoking ban.

One woman, Siegfried, 3958 Pestana Way, wrote to smoke drifted and nearly knocked me over. I lost my appetite for food."

Susan Aros noted the new roller rink on First Street has a separate room for smokers to go and urged rooms," joked Councilman Glen Dahlbacka, before agreeing that smoking "inflicts on others" and voted with the rest.

In other business council:

— Agreed to join a national coalition of cities and counties fighting federal Unemployment Compensation Amendments of 1976 which would require the city to provide unemployment compensation to all employees.

Council authorized $2,500 to assist in the law suit — Agreed to lower sanitary sewer connection fees from $1,488 to $1,351 for single family dwellings with industrial-commercial development allowed to amortize its fees to avoid heavy "front end" fees which deter some industries from locating in Livermore.

— Unanimously agreed to support the Congress of Valley Agencies. Council voted in March to drop out of COVA, but revamping of that regional agency and need for a Valleywide forum sparked the renewed interest.

— Agreed any council member desiring one should have an official identification card or badge in case of local emergencies.

— Agreed to reconsider next week the request by Holdener Dairy to place its sign perpendicular to the street so motorists will see their business, which is set back off the road. Council denied a variance for the sign last October.

A recreation coordinator, clerk and additional cook also will be hired.

Foster told the board the department has had to pull women deputies from other, choicer assignments to augment help at Santa Rita.

Work at the sprawling, 900-acre facility is the low point in the department's pecking order, and, in the past, women deputies have resigned rather than go back.

The new wing, an outgrowth of the Feb. 6 turmoil in which 53 women inmates were carted to the previously all-male, maximum security Greystone, is "a separate entity," Foster told the board, and will require additional deputies.

Both the grand jury and the judges said women should not be held at Greystone.

Inmates awaiting sentencing will be housed in the remodeled section, and women serving their time in the older portion.

By state law, sentenced and unsentenced inmates must be separated at all times.

The women's quarters, built to house 80, but now holding 175 to 200, presents "rather primitive conditions," Foster said, and expansion "created new problems."

"I'm supportive of some additional staff," said supervisor Joseph Bort, "but are you sure you aren't overreacting?" to the February incident.

The new wing will allow the sheriff's department to segregate trouble makers, Foster said. The women were taken to Greystone after the "full scale, mass demonstration," because there were no disciplinary sections to house them.

"The sheriff had very little alternative," he added.

studying a collective bargaining bill for the Lab's 6200 employees, a spokesman said yesterday.

In fact, the Lab was only responding to questions by Rep. George Brown (D-Los Angeles) after he visited the facility about six months ago and personally requested a discussion of the so-called "Stark Amendment."

The subject came up again in talks a few weeks ago, the spokesman said.

In a story carried by The Times last Friday, Rep. Brown was quoted as saying, "We've been lobbied by Dave Saxon (president of the University of California), by the people in Livermore (Lawrence Lab) management, and by the unions."

The Lab had previously denied it lobbied on the bill after employee representatives charged that LLL management was responsible for the amendment's defeat in the Senate at the hands of Sen. S.I. Hayakawa (R-Calif.).

A spokesman for the nuclear weapons design site said that the Lab does not conduct political lobbying. The University of California, which runs the Lab for the federal Energy Research and Development Administration, maintains lobbyists to advise on legislation, he said.

Defeated on the Senate floor by Hayakawa's procedural move, the bill was resurrected May 5 when Rep. Pete Stark (D-Oakland), the measure's sponsor, placed it back into House consideration on a surprise move.

LLL officials argue the bill singles out the facility from nine UC campuses and three other research labs while leaving no means to implement its provisions.

Management says it does not oppose collective bargaining for its employees.

Proponents of the Stark Amendment argue that the lab's grievance procedure favors management and should be corrected with the amendment. Stark says seven Bay Area Congressmen whose constituency represents LLL employees support the provision.

Murray superintendent candidate Byron Antcliff.

Murray Dist. hopeful believes in basic ed

The second of four candidates for the Murray School District superintendent's position has been a schools' chief since the age of 26.

Now 40, Byron Antcliff is superintendent of the Huron School District in the Wayne County metropolitan area of Michigan, Detroit being the hub.

Antcliff was hosted by members of the Local Advisory Committee during his visitation in the district Tuesday, which was capped by a public meeting at Frederiksen School.

The "public interview" sessions continue tonight with William Graff, an assistant superintendent in the Orinda School District. The meeting is open to the public and gets underway at 7:15 p.m. in the Frederiksen School library.

Prior to his nine-year tenure in suburban Wayne County district, Antcliff was superintendent of the Saugatuck District, located near Lake Michigan, and also a K-12 district. He was there three years following a one-year stint as top man with the isolated Machinac Island schools.

Antcliff told a small group gathered Tuesday that schools in Michigan have been under collective bargaining 13 years. He noted that Metro Wayne County has been in the eye of the collective bargaining storm in that state.

Saying he had no great fear of binding arbitration, Antcliff claimed he was "an advocate of it."

A University of Michigan graduate with a masters and doctorate in educational administration, Antcliff directs a district with two elementary, and one each junior high school and adult education center.

There is no central community in the 38-square-mile district service area, other than New Boston, Mich.

Antcliff said a child should come out of the elementary grades with a solid foundation in basics and repeated a comment made by finalist Floyd Davis Monday — that the Murray District seems to have building needs, and is in need of retooling in some areas.

San Ramon postal worker

Collins risks job in court hearing

SAN RAMON — To Richard Collins, his hearing Thursday in federal court on charges of violating the Hatch Act goes much deeper than his singular fate — it could mean changes in the basic structure of the executive branch.

The 54-year-old San Ramon postal worker is accused of, and readily admits to, running for president while a federal employee in violation of the 37-year-old political practices law.

He is risking his job to force public discussion on the American political party process which he says makes President Jimmy Carter "a liar."

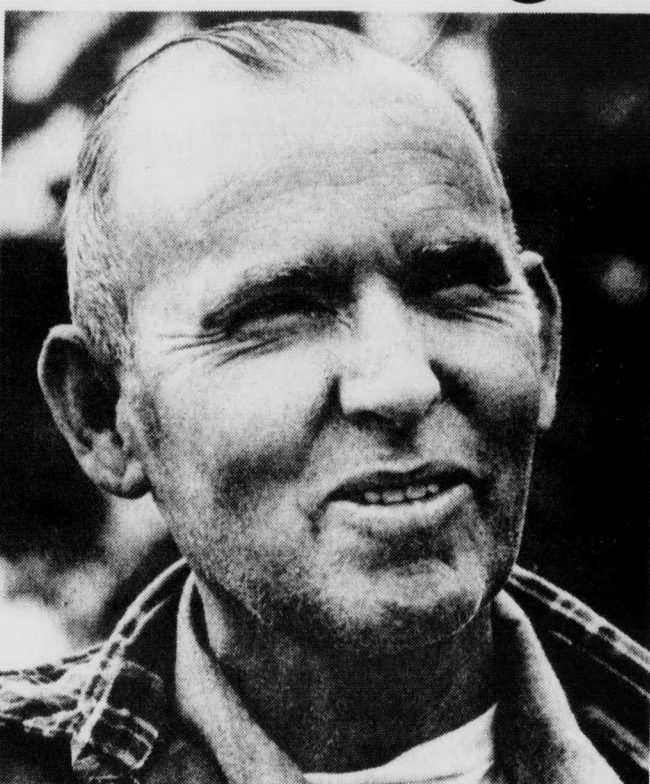

Collins believes that once elected, a president should automatically resign from his party. To continue simultaneously as leader of both a nation and a special interest group is a conflict.

A president would no longer need affiliation with a political party if one of about 15 bills now being considered to establish a single term, six-year presidency is approved.

Collins feels that while Carter is "a good president with high morals," he is also "a liar" because the presidential oath says a leader shall not serve two interests.

And that is why Collins is carrying the case through. Although a seldom-used law, he knew a presidential campaign would force its implementation.

"I called (federal) legal counsel in San Francisco in September, 1975, to ask if I could run as an independent presidential candidate. They were vague but said it would probably be illegal." He used a post office copy machine to copy campaign literature and promptly notified his superiors, hoping to point out an apparent discrepancy between his campaign and Gerald Ford's.

"Ford accepted between $8-12 million in federal funds for added security after Sarah Jane Moore's assassination attempt," Collins recalled. "He could have just stayed home. And given some service for the salary he was being paid."

He told postal authorities he had used government property in the same way Ford had and dared them to prosecute him. They didn't.

As an example of "deals" in the Carter Administration, Collins points to the $50 tax rebate program that was recently scrapped. "Many representatives went along with the plan purely for party reasons and not because it was best for the country; they were quoted as saying so."

The San Ramon resident says he has several surprises planned to focus attention on the hearings. A press conference will precede the hearing.

Civil Service Commission Administrative Law Judge John J. McCarthy will preside at the 10 a.m. hearings tomorrow at the federal building in San Francisco.

daylight and 8 of total darkness, she said.

"At 7 a.m. the neon lights went on with a bang and went off at 11 p.m. There was no sunrise or sunset."

Pruit said the eighth day of being in bed was the toughest.

"All of us felt what Dr. Sandler said was a normal state of regression — almost childlike — at that point. I'd had it. I knew it was almost over and it got to me."

No one lost any weight during the bed rest portion of testing, Pruit said.

She said staying in bed for nine days was not as boring as anticipated since testing kept all of them busy.

No one quit and all said they would go into space if allowed.

"And I would go through the testing again," Pruit said. "That was the most exciting experience of my life and I made many new friends at NASA-Ames. They are great people."

Dr. Harold Sandler, principal investigator of the research program, complimented all of the women on a job well done.

Amador teachers seek new talks

Amador District trustees last night received notice that teachers will want to renegotiate wages, health and welfare benefits for 1977-78.

A letter of intent was presented board members by Barbara Ziegenhals, president-elect of the Amador Valley Secondary Educators Association.

Though teachers and board members recently ratified a two-year contract extending through June, 1978, it was specified that wages and benefits would be subject to renegotiation.

Rita Rowland, chairwoman of the AVSEA negotiating committee, said the teacher unit would present a contract proposal covering wages and benefits to trustees on or before June 1.

Braeseke murder case

The two sat quietly in Barry's upstairs bedroom watching a Frankenstein movie on television while they plotted to beat and then strangle the family.

Instead, they marched into the family room where Barry put the barrel of a .22-caliber rifle against his father's head and pulled the trigger three times, Cardoza claimed.

When his mother, Barbara, 44, leaped from the sofa, he shot her in the eye and in the stomach.

After "working on the grandfather with the chisel," David took the rifle and shot the 80-year-old twice, Cardoza said.

Pros head cast of comic opera

Cornwall's rocky coast is the setting of the Saturday, May 21 production of "Pirates of Penzance," Gilbert and Sullivan's comic opera. The 191st production of San Francisco's famed Lamplighters, the musical will be performed at Pleasanton's Amador High School at 8 p.m.

The one-time event is sponsored by St. Clare's Episcopal Church, with tickets priced at $5 for adults and $3 for students.

"Pirates of Penzance" boasts a professional cast — all volunteers — made up of such talents as Norman Roberts (Major-General Stanley), who joined the Lamplighters in 1968 and has sung in almost every Gilbert and Sullivan since then. When not on the Lamplighter stage he can currently be seen as Jupiter in Cole Porter's "Out of This World" at San Francisco's Phoenix Theatre.

John Ziaja, who plays the Pirate King, joined the Lamplighters in 1970, and has appeared in several recent productions. The Pirate Apprentice will be played by Baker Peeples, who has performed with West Bay Opera, Berkeley Actor's Ensemble and most recently has sang Florestan in Offenbach's "Le Mari a la Porte" with the new Opera Piccola.

Jean Cardin Ziaja, by day a systems analyst in computer research, will appear as Ruth, the female lead. Jean made her stage debut with the Lamplighters in 1976.

Tickets to the "Pirates of Penzance" are now available at Sage Books in Pleasanton and the Pleasanton Dept. of Human Resources (200 Bernal Ave.); or by mail order to St. Clare's Episcopal Church, P.O. Box 296, Pleasanton, CA 94566 (include stamped, self-addressed envelope).

Following the performance, members of St. Clare's congregation will open their homes to the public for after theatre parties, featuring Victorian grog and dessert. One home has been reserved especially for high school and college students.

A tender moment between the Pirate Apprentice and Mabel, Major-General Stanley's daughter.

Having a handicap can be a lonely thing — especially if you're a kid and the whole world seems to be doing things you can't do because your legs don't work right, or maybe you can't see.

There are a few, just a few books written about people with handicaps. Here are some of the latest ones for children:

I Have a Sister — My Sister Is Deaf (Harper, $4.95), an appealing picture book for the 5 - 8 year old set, explains deafness in positive terms. Little Sister can leap, tumble and climb the monkey bars. She likes to feel the cat purring on her lap.

Author Jeanne Whitehouse Peterson has a younger sister who is deaf and has attended courses in communication with her mother and sister. She writes: "My friends ask me about my little sister. They ask, 'Does it hurt to be deaf?'"

"No," I say, "her ears don't hurt, but her feelings do when people do not understand."

Connie's New Eyes (Lippincott, $8.95) is a gripping photo story by Bernard Wolf about a young woman who receives a seeing eye dog.

The pretty teacher and her silky cocker spaniel are pictured getting to know each other in a realistic series of photos which brings out the type of lifestyle a courageous and independent blind adult may lead. When Connie loses her teaching job and can't find another because she's handicapped, the book also touches on political problems too often ignored.

Baseball historian W.G. Nicholson writes an inspiring book about a real - life baseball hero: Pete Gray, One - Armed Major Leaguer (Prentice - Hall, $5.95.)

Generously illustrated by Ray Abel, the book tells of a 1940's baseball hero who still lives in Naticoke, Pa. Unfortunately, stiff and colorless writing mars the tale of a determined boy who was a popular St. Louis Browns player despite his handicap.

The book is aimed at about a second to sixth grade audience and in our experience is eagerly grabbed up by young baseball fans.

Bagpipe evening

The May 12 meeting of the Livermore Folk Music Club will have a distinctly different sound this month with entertainment by bagpipe player Roger Weed of Turlock.

Roger started piping in 1965, and has been a member of the Cameron Pipe Band of Sacramento, the Diablo Highlanders of Concord, and a prominent soloist at the Pacific Coast Highland Games of California.

In addition to a brief history and description of the bagpipe, Roger will perform light marches, Strathspeys and reels, and the more classical Pibroch. The regular show-off time and jam session will follow.

The public is welcome to join the group at 7:30 p.m. at 4260 First St., Livermore. Bring a blanket or chair for seating, and an instrument for sharing. For information call 443-5712 or 443-2648.

Sacred music

Piano students of Ferne Ehrlich and Gail Lew will present a sacred concert Sunday, May 15 at the First Assembly of God, 6656 Alisal St., Pleasanton. p Mrs. Ehrlich and Mrs. Lew will perform an organ duet, and the Rev. George McKean will conclude the 2:30 p.m. program with a solo. Child care will be provided.

Pleasanton chamber lunch

Schools chief tells of needs

The high school graduate is going to have a knowledge of basic skills and a firmer idea of whether career or college is that student's next best step.

Bruce Newlin, superintendent of schools for Amador Valley High and Pleasanton Elementary districts, outlined for a Tuesday audience the program which has occupied the attention of educators since the California legislature mandated "minimal requirements for graduation from high school."

"Are public schools doing their job?" Newlin asked in opening his remarks to a luncheon gathering of the Pleasanton Chamber of Commerce. He acknowledged that "public support for public education is eroding."

Failure to convey "a basic standard of proficiency based on the community's needs" is one important area where education from kindergarten through 12th grade must now address itself, Newlin noted. It is needed, and it is the law.

Every school system in California is required to adopt by June 1 of 1978 "a program which stresses basic skills... in writing, in math, in industrial arts." Newlin explained that in the Amador and Pleasanton school systems, a program now being developed will set forth those basic needs in three major areas: 1. Critical skills, 2. Individualized program (looking to career or college) and 3. An elective program to include enrichment classes and practical skills as best suits the student.

The problem with the existing system is that "students were credited with Carnegie units for attending class, and these pointed toward graduation," Newlin said. It has been possible for a student to graduate high school lacking basic knowledge of spelling or simple mathematics.

Newlin acknowledged that "getting the teachers to identify with this new program" will be a challenge but he noted that "legislation also provides funds for in-service training for teachers. I see no real problem here."

As to teaching materials and texts that might be needed to implement the new "basic skills" program in every high school, Newlin agreed that "we are going to have to make use of much of the material we already have... we simply cannot afford to throw everything out and start over."

Public will review teacher pact terms

PLEASANTON—Community response to the 1977-78 Amador Valley Teachers Association (AVTA) contract proposal will be heard today at 7:30 p.m. in the Harvest Park School library.

Anyone unable to attend the meeting who would like to comment on the proposal can do so in writing to the board in care of the district office. Representatives of AVTA will be present to answer questions and amplify meanings of the proposal.

If time allows after the public hearing at Harvest

Park, the Pleasanton school board will be discussing their goals for the coming year. Citizens who wish to suggest goal ideas can contact board members by phone or letter prior to the meeting.

Board members are Betty Nostrand, president, 846-7688; Earnestine Schneider, 462-1582; Nancy Hawtrey, 846-3877; Ronald Ott, 846-1459, and Joe Schwab, 846-5788.

Following the hearing and goals discussion the board will meet in executive session to begin formulating their initial proposal to the AVTA for the 1977-78 contract. The board will officially respond to the proposal at a special meeting on Wednesday, May 25.

Negotiation meetings will begin the following week. The AVTA negotiating team and district negotiators will meet on May 16 to discuss ground rules and schedules for the negotiating sessions.

Jazz groups from Amador Valley and Granada High Schools will participate in the 2nd Annual Columbia Jazz Festival Friday and Saturday at the Columbia Junior College campus in the Sierra foothills.

Tonight Show drummer Ed Shaughnessy and Supersax, five of the finest saxophonists in the country, will be guest artists at the Festival. Supersax will perform Friday night and Shaughnessy Saturday at Carkeet Park on the Columbia campus. Performances are at 8 o'clock.

Granada's big band will perform at 11:30 a.m. Friday and again at 1:30 p.m. Ted Spilman is director.

Amador Valley's big band, under the baton of Jim Campana, will play at 10 a.m. Saturday and the small combo at 11:30 a.m.

Clinics by the guest artists are scheduled both afternoons at 4 p.m. to assist the students with their own performance techniques and to give them a chance to hear what it sounds like when you do it right, according to Kenneth Brungess, who is coordinating the festival for the college.

Each group will receive written evaluations from each of the judges and a rating of Superior, Excellent or Fair to Good.

The evening concerts are open to the public with the tickets sold at the gate for $3 each.

Staff shifts in Livermore schools seen

LIVERMORE — Two Livermore Unified School District teachers have announced their resignation and three have been granted leaves of absence, according to recent school board action.

Leaves of absence will be taken in the coming school year by Barbara Biasotti, a second grade teacher at Sonoma School; Xavier Gutierrez, seventh and eighth grade Spanish teacher at East Avenue; and Judi Miller, second grade teacher at Smith School.

Classified employees who have resigned are Elizabeth Farfan, Green School playground supervisor and Michael Gleason, garden-

Newly hired classified personnel include Barbara Steiger, Green School playground supervisor; Linda Olsen, accounts clerk in the administration building; and Rick Holland, garden-

Livermore Hi team takes top ag honor

LIVERMORE — A Livermore High agricultural team has won back the gleaming silver trophy designating first place in a statewide marketing contest.

Livermore High students Sue Davies, Denise Jackson and Debbie Sparks, backed up by alternate Sue Hannon, won the California State Championship in a contest sponsored by the Agricultural Council of California. The contest consisted of a test given May 7 at California State Polytechnic University at San Luis Obispo, based on study materials provided by the Agricultural Council of California. The tests measure contestants' knowledge in marketing, elements of principles of cooperation as they apply to marketing, bargaining, purchasing and service associations, basic mathematical techniques for computing averages, percentages, patronage refunds and other areas.

The four students, all members of the school's Future Farmers of America chapter, brought home ribbons and a silver bowl to keep in the Livermore High trophy case, as well as an elaborate urn which will be passed on to future winners.

They also brought back a $300 cash award. To crown the achievement, Sue Davies won $150, a pin and ribbon for scoring highest of any student in the state on the test. Sue scored 96 of 100 points.

As a team, the girls piled up 269 out of a possible 300 points. The second-place team from Buena Park High School trailed by five points. Third place went to LaHabra High with a 248 score; fourth went to McKinleyville High with 243 and fifth was awarded to Elk Grove High with 241 points.

Agriculture teacher Ron Furtado was the team's advisor and coach.

Consumerism

We like that notice of tomorrow's scheduled meeting of the Alameda County Consumer Affairs Commission if only because of the lead sentence in that press release...

"An Alameda County Department of Consumer Affairs with teeth will be discussed in its final form..."

Such departments have been on the scene for some time now. If you, as a consumer, are totally unaware of that agency then it is only because you have never been inspired, or educated, to use that service. Join the crowd.

There is scarcely one among us who has not been upset by some product or price, commercial or governmental service at least once in the past year. If not downright angry, we are at least dismally confused. "Why must they do things that way?" is a common lament.

Perhaps there is indeed a better way. Perhaps a great many other consumers share your complaint, would agree with your question. But whom do you question? Where do you complain?

In July of 1976 The Times did a feature report on "They're trying to cure consumer headaches" with emphasis on two Valley residents with particular input. Fern Corley was Pleasanton's representative on that Alameda County Commission on Consumer Affairs; Wilma McGurn was Livermore's contact on that panel.

The problem is, by their own admission, not much has happened with "consumer action" since July of 1976.

When that commission meets in revised session tomorrow, 9:15 a.m. in Oakland, the first order of business will be to review "a year's study and preparation..." in what would become the first County Department of Consumer Affairs in the Bay Area.

The person who headed up that long study is Fern Corley of Pleasanton.

Let's hope the time for studying has passed; the need for action and education in the multi billion dollar business of consumerism is here and now.

Kitty Archibald

She was a reporter from the old school. Tough, penetrating, determined to write her story no matter what.

It is no secret that Kitty Archibald made a few enemies in the course of her newspaper career; no small triumph that she leaves behind a great many more who had come to respect her style of journalism, her concept of "the people's right to know."

The Times was always Kitty Archibald's "competition." And oh, how we competed! But it must also be noted that it was on this newspaper's staff where Evangeline Archibald found some of her closest friends, particularly in those later years when a new breed of journalists had little empathy for Kitty's hell-fire brand of servitude.

Mrs. Paul B. "Kitty" Archibald will be laid to rest today, in her 55th year of life. Newspapering will be a little poorer, and quite a bit duller, with her passing.

Pipeline politics

Editor, The Times:

A random sampling of Voter sentiment in Pleasanton indicates that there is substantial support for a recall of the council-folk who are responsible for the sewer pipe in the sky...

here are but ways to prevent this "hite elephant." The bonds can be litigated by citizens' action which takes a lot of bread. Zone 7 could bring an action to slow it up a little and a recall can with a lot of work be undertaken with an injunction to prevent further involvement until the new council-folk take over.

Recall is a desperate negative action taken by injured citizens as a last resort. It can stop disaster but produce no utopia. The pipe is no solution to our problem and not even a complete solution to the pollution of the Niles Cone. The wisest of our politicians haven't the vaguest notion what a proper solution might be so they move according to the strongest political wind that blows...

Everyone should know that state and federal grant funds are available to build pipe lines that are non-solutions to our problem-but not one dime to improve the quality of our water supply...

Success for any plan to get both Sacramento and Washington to take this matter seriously and put some money where it will do some good, depends on "grass roots" voter response...

We need grant monies to build a model to demonstrate what this state and much of the nation must do NOW to prevent the Hell that we will surely deserve if we haven't the good sense to do the reasonable thing NOW!!!

John B. Fraga
Pleasanton

Unreasonable line

Editor, The Times:

The issue of a pipeline to keep valley sewage effluent out of Alameda Creek has been under discussion for months. During all this time there has been, to my knowledge, not one clear statement of the water standard which would be violated without a pipeline...

While not saying so directly, The Valley Times interview with Gib Marguth on April 17 indicated the standards being imposed on valley effluent by the Regional Water Quality Control Board is 250 ppm of TDS (parts per million of Total Dissolved Solids). ... no wonder no one wants it known for fear they might be called upon to defend it! TDS of 250 ppm was barely met by Del Valle water in normal years and because of the drought is exceeded more than 3-fold by water now being delivered to Livermore resident for drinking water. In other words, the water standard generating the need for the pipeline would not even allow dumping Del Valle water into Alameda Creek...

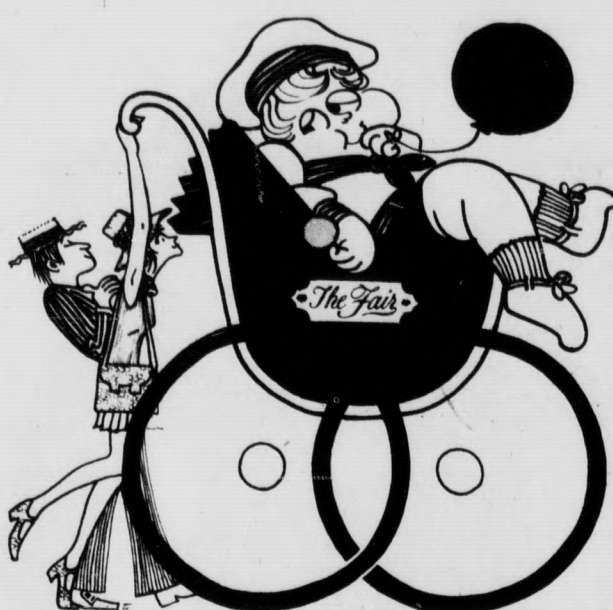

Fremont is using Alameda Creek to transport imported water to their underground aquifers and now regard the Creek as their private aqueduct. ... Fremont should be forced to build a pipeline to carry their drinking water through the Niles cone. If Fremont succeeds in forcing us to dispose of our effluent elsewhere they will next insist that we catch and dispose of all the storm drainage which washes all sorts of salts, debris and dead insects ... into the creek everytime it rains...

It is clear that no one but the taxpayers are going to draw the line on such gold-plated moralistic sacrificial offerings to the environment and if we must do so eventually why not now!

The Fair Board

The review of County Fair operations, as contained in a report to County Supervisors, makes some interesting recommendations that could further aid operations and considerably change board makeup and the status of association employees.

Two major recommendations are made: Rewrite the section on insurance to reflect present conditions, and require the Fair to develop and implement an affirmative action program.

The latter could eventually result in unionization of Fairgrounds employees and fewer directors from the Amador-Livermore Valley.

Past and present contracts have provided that all employees be employees of the association and that they be paid salaries as nearly comparable to that of the county as possible.

However, workers at the Fairgrounds in Pleasanton are not covered by the Meyers-Milias-Brown Act because they are not public employees and there is some question as to whether they might be covered by the National Labor Relations Act.

Most recent votes to determine whether Fairgrounds employees wished to be represented by Service Employees International Union have swung increasingly closer to the "yes" side, the last one May 26, 1976 coming out an 8-8 deadlock.

There appears every likelihood that, given the increasing amount of lobbying by the union, employees will some day vote to join the SEIU.

Whether such an action will improve the operations of the Fairgrounds and the individual lot of employees is anyone's guess.

Suffice it to say Fair maintenance and operations in the past have always been exemplary, under direction of the board, Secretary/Manager Lee Hall and maintenance chief Lew Alexander.

A key element of the report is a discussion of organization alternatives, contractual structure of Fair operations.

"There are many different ways the Fair could be operated," the section leads off. "The county could take over direct operation of the Fair and run it as though it were a county department. On the other end of the scale would be a completely autonomous Fair Association which would operate the Fair, complying only with the rules and regulations of the State Board of Fairs and Expositions. In this arrangement, the County would have to 'rubber stamp' certain actions for the Fair Association; i.e., the Board of Supervisors, by State Law must approve the budget, transfers, and make actual expenditures for capital outlay."

The latter end of the "scale" would appear to be the best solution.

But this still leaves the question of makeup of the board.

Other county fairs in Northern California are almost completely supervisory appointments. A glance at the makeup of the 21-member Alameda County Fair Association board evidences a heavy imbalance of directors in the Livermore-Amador Valley and Southern Alameda County, as opposed to Oakland and north county.

That question will have to be resolved and the sooner it is, the better.

Thanks to you, especially your sports department, for your coverage of the American Cancer Society tennis tournament. Crooked politics

Editor, The Times:

The CARD Committee says new evidence indicates the 1958 sewage contract between Pleasanton and the county fair was slanted to provide the fair at the expense of the city taxpayers.

Livermore watchdogs know that the Livermore Railroad Relocation Project was slanted to favor the SP and private corporations at the expense of the city taxpayers.

Crooked politicians and apathetic voters are killing Alameda Co. taxpayers. So, what else is new?

Overmilked cow

Editor, The Times:

To Assemblyman Floyd Mori: Whenever a community sends a new man to the seat of government, there are many who hope he will become the exception...

Certainly it is easier for lawmakers to see their role as one of redistribution of income to redress inequities... because there is no accountability for the failure of programs that once begun become the vested interest of so many to continue. Thus the productive sector of the great American economy has become the cow that legislatures milk to exhaustion in schemes that only imperil the State's and nation's health. The shibboleths of the common run of politician are: "How selfish the cow is!"; "How shameful for the cow to want to prosper!"

Now it appears to some of us that your views on property tax reform place you squarely with drift and cow milking. Instead of understanding the currents that are causing the ruin of us all. Your proposal to shift tax burdens to those who can give more milk does nothing to alleviate the real illness. On the contrary, this holding action can only result in a larger proportion of our people relying upon government preference to survive. Once people come to understand that it is government policy not their own virtue which maintains them, they have been hopelessly corrupted.

Thanks a lot.

A big help

Editor, The Times:

I want to take this opportunity to sincerely thank you for your continued support of the Valley Volunteer Bureau. Due to your attractive weekly column listing available volunteer positions, hundreds of people have been matched with community needs. I would like to particularly express our gratitude to reporters Jean McKenna and Al Fischer who have faithfully, sensitively, and enthusiastically reported the Bureau's activities.

Our recent wine tasting fund raiser was a big success. We greatly appreciated your publicity for this event and for our other fund raising efforts. The community has responded generously to our program and we are hopeful of your continued assistance in keeping valley residents informed of useful and creative ways they can serve our community.

Round the town

One of the penalties in being "the elder statesman" of reporters in these several communities is in seeing so many fine people come, and go, through this Fourth Estate.

One of the great joys is in having known them.

Jean McKenna, Pat Widder, Kitty Archibald, Dana McGaugh... these are names that come to mind this week as we are compelled to recite once more the reporter's litany in this vale of print.

Dana McGaugh made his mark as the pioneer in "adversary journalism." His term as editor of The Independent, as with his lifespan on this earth, were well timed to his role as the firebrand of suburban newspapering.

Personally, I had rare occasion to agree with Dana; but I never had reason to doubt that he was here. Alive and kicking. But he is alive no more.

Kitty Archibald was a firebrand of more recent vintage. And carrying a somewhat different torch. She was as likely to burn her editor as the mayor. "The story is the thing!" That was Kitty's credo.

She could torch the city council in a Monday morning edition; sit in as reporter and cross examiner at the Monday evening session; then adjourn to a local bar to share heavy thoughts with that same maligned public servant, far into the night.

Kitty covered the Pleasanton City Hall beat for the Livermore Herald during much of the same time that Pat Widder handled that assignment for the Pleasanton Times. These two women — without peer in their respective roles — became good friends as a result of that double exposure. But they remained, to the end, steadfast competitors.

Pat went on to Chicago... a suburban beat for the Tribune. Now she heads that bureau.

"And one of our big stories right now is sewers... growth versus the ecology. That sort of thing. I guess I'm destined to be a sewer reporter." But a good sewer reporter, I'll bet.

Jean McKenna was another good reporter. With people, not sewers. She joined The Times' Lifestyle Department in 1974. Promising, intelligent, but somewhat green. She remained to become one of the finest editors in that field which Valley newspapering has ever known.

Jean hasn't left this earth. But she is about to depart this state. Her husband is being transferred to Houston. The call comes just as Jean and Mike were getting to know their lovely new home in San Ramon, adding the final touches to their garden, looking forward to family and friends...

Jean McKenna would never quite identify with the likes of Dana McGaugh, or even Kitty Archibald. But then again, Jean was more in touch with "today's suburban family" than those journalistic warhorses of the past.

The Valley is changing. More settled. Demanding security more, seeking revolution less. The "lifestyle" of 1977 is not that which once stirred Dana into editorial heat, or sent Kitty's fingers flying across the keys.

They are an interesting story in themselves; these members of the suburban press... 1960 — 1977. In many ways they reflect the changing scene in a basin once steeped in string beans and sugar beets... dragged screaming through "The Soaring '60's"... now hovering perilously on the fine edge of suburban affluence, but victim to the peril that besets all of Middle Class America.

I remember one of the first promising young reporter - types who joined this publication in its every - Wednesday period. He was a college graduate. PhD. Had been on staff with encyclopaedia Britannica before determining "I want to write history, not sell it."

And so he came to us. To function as a reporter... adversary or otherwise. He did fine. Just one flaw.

"I guess I should have told you that I can't type," PhD. acknowledged, one rainy afternoon. "I've been taking my notes home to my wife... she types them up into news stories that I bring in next morning."

With the weekly news deadline, no one ever knew the difference, nor cared. Dana and Kitty, Pat and Jean would never understand a reporter who couldn't type... two fingers or ten. But then again, none of them had PhD's. Just one more change in the local news scene, over the past 20 years.

Poor plants

Grim days for those in garden and landscaping trades. May is the month of flowers — Pleasanton's Rose Show, the California Garden Show in Oakland.

At the nursery, however, it's mostly no shows.

Drought wilted the homeowners desire to plant, and it's drying up profits for people who sell greenery.

Out here water shortage couldn't have settled in at a worse time — if you're a flower peddler. One of the East Bay's all-time building booms is underway in the San Ramon Valley. New homes spring up like dandelions. They're sold before foundations are poured.

Should be round-the-clock business for landscapers, all those proud new ortgages with naked lots. The area is saddled with stringent rationing of water, however, so nobody's planting.

And the nurserymen are moaning.

"It was fine until until EBMUD (East Bay Municipal Utilities District) just cut back the water allotments some more," says a Livermore nursery owner. "We had all the business we could handle, then they cut it back to 225 gallons per day for a home, and the bottom dropped out."

"Now I'm starting a bait shop at the nursery. Maybe we can sell a lot of beer until this thing blows over."

Even where water is plentiful (relatively speaking Livermore, Dublin and Pleasanton have sufficient) drought dampens the planter's spirit.

There's fear of a further extended dry spell and region-wide rationing. Worse yet is fear of a neighbor's baleful stare when the gardener opens up the sprinkler.

Lawn irrigation has become a clandestine activity, best suited for after dark. Lush greenery is no longer a symbol of suburban pride. If it's too green, too lush, suspicions arise. Strange faces can be seen huddling around the water meter.

Better the grass is parched and gnarled — it's a sign of community concern.

It bodes well for the landscaper if the rain ever returns. San Ramon Valley is a garden wasteland that could become a desert this summer. Folks say "let the lawn die. It has never looked good, so we can save water and replant next year when there's more water."

Sustaining thoughts for a nurseryman. It doesn't pay this year's bills, however. So the industry has launched a massive public awareness campaign. They'll give you reams of alternative planting suggestions. Water-saving flora ranging from cactus to petrified forests.

Irrigation tips like sinking a punctured coffee can full of water next to the roots — if someone can afford a can of coffee.

Spinoff industries jumped on alternative gardening. Decorative rock for the yard is a big seller, so is concrete. No water used there.

Don't expect the backyard dry look to last, though.

True, it's not so easy being green, but out in the suburbs we try. Flowering shrubs and cushy sod are still the staples of a home garden.

When the rains come back the traditional look in home planting will be reinstated.

Same thing happened during the energy crisis. While oil companies were restricting flow, car buyers were forsaking full-sized autos for economy models. When the crunch eased big sedans again dominated the showroom floor.

Hopefully there's a moral in there for nurserymen. If not, better stock up on the beer.

Dr. Joyce Brothers

DEAR DR. BROTHERS: You can do many men like me a great favor by discussing the other side of the picture of divorce. Everyone thinks it's the man who lives the high old life after a separation and that women are the ones who have trouble getting started again. Well, I'm one who knows different. After 25 years of marriage, my wife left me. I'm 49 and completely overwhelmed by my single status. Perhaps plain bored, dejected and frustrated would better sum up my situation. — K.O.D.

DEAR K.O.D.: You're absolutely right — the modern image of a divorced man is all wet. All too often the dominant view of a man newly widowed or divorced follows the concept of the swinging single put forward by some of the girlie magazines. Never mind whether he's 30 or 70, an Adonis or Joe Average, wealthy or unemployed, public opinion feels he has the better of the deal.

Actually, that's far from true. Dr. William Kephart, a sociologist at the Wharton School of Commerce, made a study of divorced males. Most admitted to having intimate relations as often as when they were married, but a majority also indicated they would like to marry again.

Dr. Kephart classified the men into four types, the first is the helpless male, the domestically incompetent who looks upon a wife as a live-in maid. Remarriage for him represents a strong desire to get his life back in order.

The second type needs the mothering comfort and companionship that marriage brought him. Type three is the shy introvert for whom approaching a new relationship is difficult. Marriage for him is therapy.

In contrast, the playboy or fourth type revels in the variety of an active social and sexual life without the responsibilities of marriage.

There's your answer. Most divorced men do live lives of frustration — and the incidence of second marriages proves that only a minority of swinging Johns are happy in the single state. No matter what your type, get out and mix and try again.

DEAR DR. BROTHERS: I was aware of my husband's homosexual tendencies when we married, but lately we've been having problems. When he makes love to me, he pretends I'm a male. I am naturally upset, but he claims it doesn't hinder his love for me, only his mental image of me at the time. Recently he met a sailor whom he wants to have live with us when he's in town. I don't know if I could cope with such a ménage à trois. — J.D.

DEAR J.D.: Two's company, as they say, and in this case three would definitely make a crowd. If your husband seriously expects that such an arrangement could work, he obviously needs counseling of a sort that you're incapable of providing. Too many women think they can change the basic character of the men they marry, only to lead lives of desperation and disillusionment.

Some authorities feel that many homosexuals are psychic masochists. This could very well be true in your husband's case. He must be aware of the emotional pain you would bear under the circumstances.

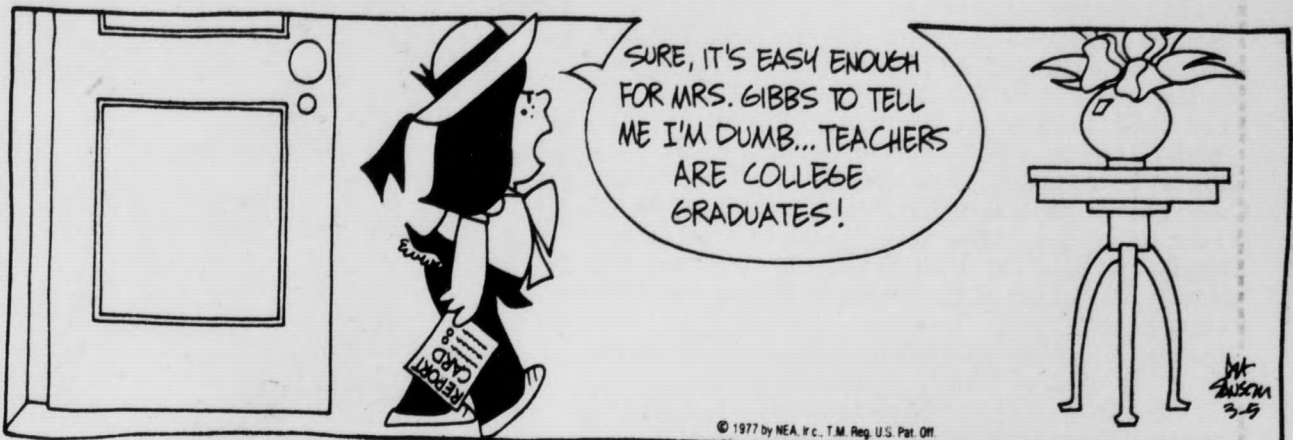

Perhaps feelings of guilt about his homosexuality have inhibited him to the point that he feels a confrontation between you and his lover would force one or the other of you to reject him, thereby easing his own conscience.

Don't play his game — it won't be too gay for all involved.

the CIRCUS of P.T. BIMBO

THE BORN LOSER

Dr. Lamb

DEAR DR. LAMB — I am an 18-year-old girl with hair that just about reaches my waist. In the last three weeks large amounts of it comes out whenever I brush it or wash it. It has never done this before and has always been beautifully thick and it has never been cut shorter than mid-back length.

I'm 5 feet 5 and I try to maintain my weight between 112 and 115. I eat toast for breakfast, some type of fruit for lunch and a large green salad with cheese and several kinds of raw vegetables for dinner. I also drink a couple of cups of coffee a day. I eat some type of meat usually once a week.

I gain weight very easily so I diet pretty severely. Is there some type of vitamin or mineral that I'm lacking? I take a multi-vitamin tablet.

I am very upset about what's happening and I would appreciate it if you could tell me what is wrong or what type of doctor I should see. Can you suggest a low calorie food I can use to replace whatever I am lacking?

DEAR READER — This may be a temporary problem for you. The most important feature of your story is your terrible diet. If you have given the true facts you have a protein deficiency. Protein deficient diets will lead to loss of hair, as will semi-starvation crash diets or prolonged illnesses associated with inadequate intake of calories and particularly protein. Dieting and hair loss have a well known cause and effect relationship.

What low calorie food can you eat? I would suggest at least seven ounces and preferably 14 ounces of lean meat every day. Actually 14 ounces of lean beef with the fat removed before cooking contains less than 600 calories and will provide the protein you need. You need calcium which you should get from milk.

There are two other possibilities — you may have an iron deficiency which will cause loss of hair even if you do not have an anemia or if you are overdoing hi-potency vitamins you may be getting too much vitamin A which can cause a loss of hair.

About 85 per cent of the hair follicles have normal hair growth while the remaining follicles rest. The resting follicles are not dead, just sleeping. Since the scalp hair has a life cycle between two and six years this usually doesn't affect the abundance of scalp hair.

During the last part of pregnancy more than 90 per cent of the hair follicles are active. Because of the natural life cycle for hair about two or three months after delivery a larger than normal amount of follicles enter the resting stage. The older hair drops out and is not immediately replaced with a new growth of hair. The woman is frantic if she doesn't know about this. She is not losing her hair or going bald but is simply readjusting to the normal ratio of resting and active hair follicles. In a few months time her normal hair growth pattern will be reestablished.

Johnny Wonder's QUESTION CORNER

Q. "WHAT MAKES GLACIERS?"
KRISTIN WERTH
N. TONAWANDA, NY

A. GLACIERS OFTEN FORM IN HIGH VALLEYS WHERE SNOW PILES UP YEAR AFTER YEAR. MUCH OF IT TURNS TO ICE AND MOVES SLOWLY BY ITS OWN GREAT WEIGHT DOWN THE MOUNTAIN.

You may have seen pictures of glaciers that creep downward like great rivers of ice from snowy mountains.

On most continents, glaciers form only on high mountains where a great deal of snow falls and it stays so cold that the snow never melts completely.

It piles up year after year. Layers of snow trapped beneath new snow slowly pack down and turn into ice.

When the pile becomes heavy enough, it begins to move slowly down the mountainside. Now it becomes a glacier.

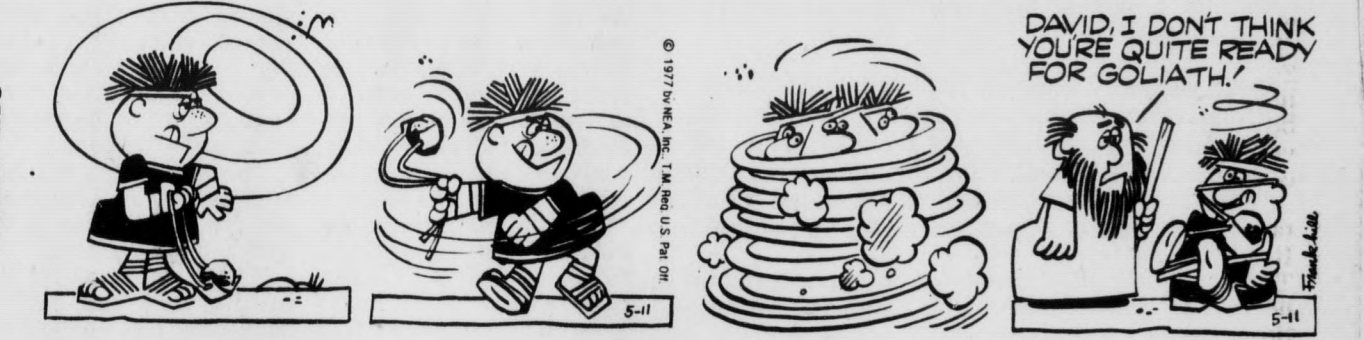

It moves only a few inches or a few feet a day, picking up rocks and dirt and grinding away the earth.

Glaciers that push through mountain valleys are often called valley glaciers.

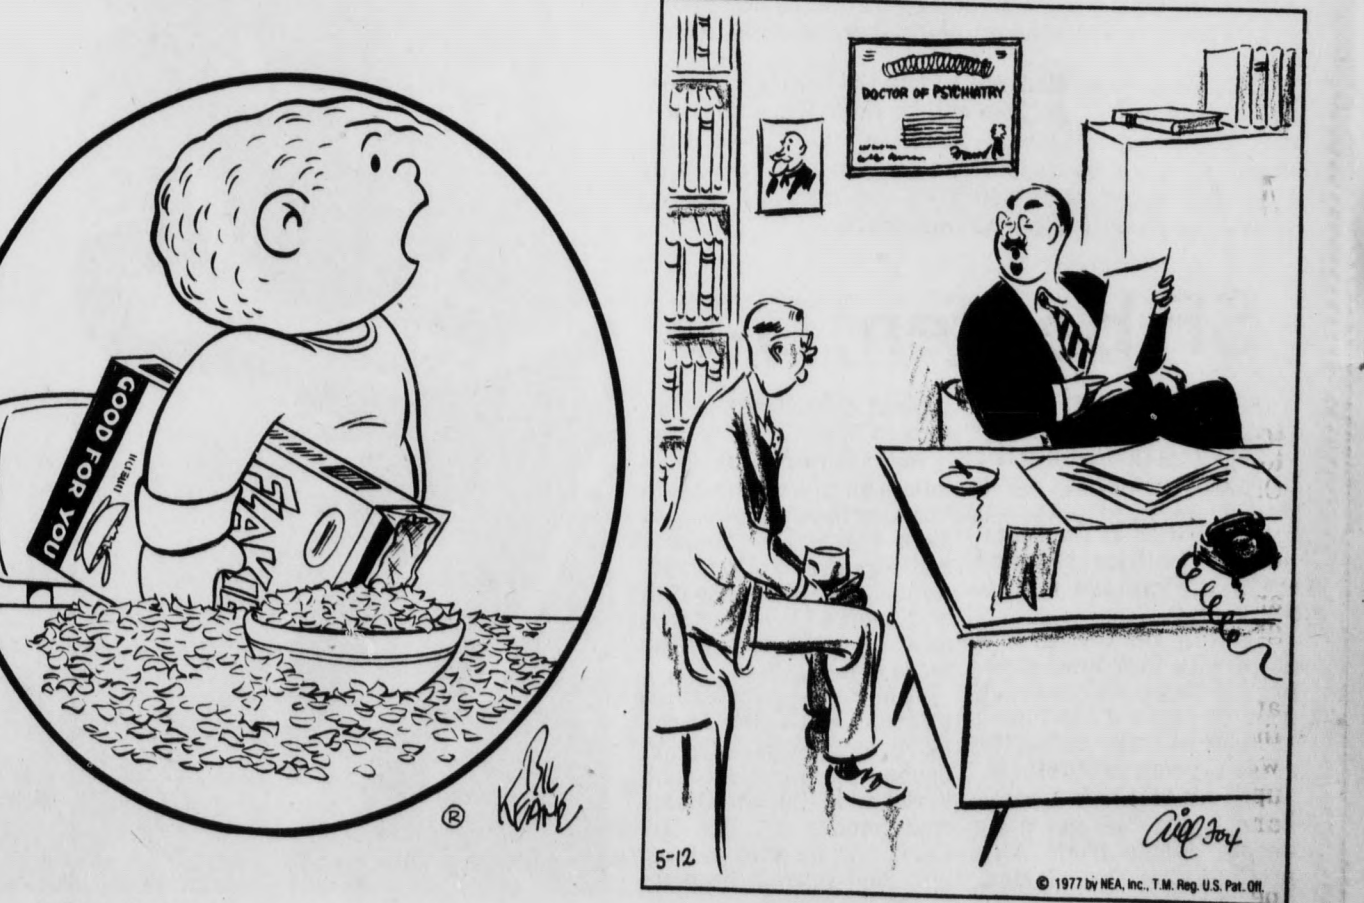

In Greenland and Antarctica, great ice sheets called continental glaciers or icecaps cover thousands of square miles.

Sometimes a glacier reaches the sea and great chunks of ice called icebergs break off and drift afar before melting.

Safety plays are always fine in rubber bridge when the contract is all important. In match point you must consider whether or not it is worth your while to risk an overtrick in order to insure your contract.

Playing at six notrump, South needs just five spade tricks but he needs those five. He won't get them if East holds all four spades, but when he leads a spade from his hand at trick two and West follows with seven he has a perfect safety play at his disposal. He just plays the nine from dummy.

This time the safety play costs him a trick. The spades are going to break 2-2 and if he rises with the ace or king he will make six spade tricks. Should the spades break 3-1 all plays work out the same, but if West held all four spades the play of the ace or king would cost South his contract.

The safety play is clearly correct in rubber bridge. How about at match points?

It is probably incorrect. Six notrump or six spades will have been bid at nearly all tables and the player who doesn't make an overtrick will probably get a poor score. A 2-2 break is far more likely than a 4-0 break and declarer should go after all the tricks.

Anglers ignore bad weather

Charlie Litz

The LLLRA Fishing Derby held last weekend was a great success in spite of an unusual rain and windy weather.

Don Slami and John Robinson were the prime movers of the event and have turned in the list of winning entries, as follows:

Senior Division — Carol Van Arkel with a 35 lb 9 oz fish; Mike Case 31 lb 9 oz; Bob Wev, 25 lb 8 oz; Del Statler, 21 lb 12 oz; Charoes Chaplin, 21 lb 12 oz; Fred Cecil, 19 lb; Dave Freman, 17 lb 9 oz;

Mel Caywood, 16 lb; Jerald Gordon, 15 lb 5 oz; Gabriel Comages, 1; Cyle Coom, 14 lb 12 oz; Sandy Casey, 14 lb 12 oz; Dave Van Arkel, 14 lb 3 oz; Kelly White, 13 lb 9 oz; Mila Kissick, 12 lb 5 oz; Dave Brierly, 11 lb 8 oz; Phil Wilson 10 lb 10 oz; Ed Schmitt, 10 lb 8 oz; R.C. Heinitz 10 lb 8 oz; and Otto Peterson, 9 lb 7 oz;

Junior Division — Sid Cecil, 14 lb 1 oz; Mike Simpson, 10 lb 1 oz; and Doug Simpson, 8 lb 8 oz;

Catfish Division — Milt Martin, 19 oz; Richard Kennedy, 19 oz; R.R. More, 18 oz; Jim Cormier, Jr., 17 oz; Larry Humphrey, 17 oz.

Door Prize was won by Tom Ellis, Sr.

Carol Van Arkel reports that she got her big one trolling the Grant Line Canal with husband Dave, in a small aluminum boat, using a red rebel and red - and - white pork rind. She said it took about 20 minutes to get the critter on board.

Mike Casey, whose fish was second in size, said he trolled off Bethel Island with friends Jerry Gordon and Tim Cruz. He used a pink rebel on a spreader with pork rind; they also fished with rigged anchovies and shad minnows.

Mike reports that four of the bass wore DFG tags and one sported a $10 reward tag.

Walt Hidalgo, Jr. got a call from his father Walt, Sr., and two uncles, Luis Hidalgo and Al Ortega to arrange a fishing group at San Luis Reservoir over the weekend.

The father and son each latched onto an 8 1/2 lb striper. Al was the winner with the most fish; but Luis caught the biggest one, a 12 1/2 lb striper.

All kinds of bait was used to entice those big strippers: clams, anchovies, sardines, and a few choice words! They all agreed that the rain squalls on Sunday were a slight drawback; but no one objects to the rain this year!.

Rich Lanza and Rino Francetti were two others who tried their luck fishing, but they declined to say who caught the most.

More than a dozen cutthroat trout ascending the Truckee River near Reno these days are carrying their own radio, reports the Department of Fish and Game (DFG).

No, it's not the Citizens Band radio craze gone mad; it's an experimental program including the California and Nevada Departments of Fish and Game and the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service.

Each of 14 of the trout weighing between 4 and 11 pounds apiece was equipped with a miniature radio transmitter before being stocked in the river late last week. Each has its own individual signal.

The transmitters, which are encapsulated in beeswax, are implanted under the skin on the back. Each of the fish also carries an orange-colored spaghetti-type tag for identification.

Movement of the experimental fish upstream toward Lake Tahoe is monitored daily by aircraft. Within the first few days one of the fish had moved about 10 miles.

Jim Ryan, an associate fishery biologist with the California DFG, said that monitoring the movement of the fish is a vital part of behavioral studies into means of rehabilitating the once great fishery for cutthroat trout. These trout ascended the river from Pyramid Lake each spring for spawning.

Among other things, biologists are interested in the rate of movement of the trout and when and where they go to spawn.

"We know the size of these fish is going to tempt anglers," said Ryan, "but we would like them to release these trout unharmed so that we can get maximum information for the study."

Ryan added, however, that there is no law against a fisherman keeping any of these fish if he finds he cannot help himself.

Anyone catching one of the fish should immediately call collect one of the following:

Nevada DFG (702) 784-6214; California DFG (916) 445-0376; or U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service (702) 784-5228 or 5685.

Researchers are especially interested in getting back the radio transmitters and anglers are asked to remove them carefully.

A similar study was conducted last year, but the migrating fish were stopped by dams. In this year's effort the release was made upstream of the dams.

Trap and Skeet Ranges at the Livermore - Pleasanton Rod and Gun Club will be open the first Tuesday evening in June. Shooting will last until shooters want to quit of an evening. If you enjoy trap and skeet, this will give you a chance to improve your skills. See you out there.

SF beaten, 3-0

PHILADELPHIA — Home runs by Greg Luzinski and Mike Schmidt backed Steve Carlton's 34th major-league shutout Tuesday night as the Philadelphia Phillies blanked the San Francisco Giants 3-0.

Carlton set the Giants down with four hits, striking out three and walking none in earning his fourth straight win after losing the season opener to Montreal.

The Giants went down in order in the first but got a oneout double from Willie McCovey in the second. Carlton then struck out Larry Herndon and retired Darrell Evans on a groundout to first.

Rob Andrews beat out an infield hit to start the fourth but Carlton disposed of Jack Clark, Bill Madlock and McCovey. The Giants went out in order in the fifth and Andrews reached first on a two-out error by Sizemore in the sixth.

The Phillies threatened against Williams in the fourth on Luzinski's leadoff double and a one-out walk to Schmidt. But the Giants right-hander got Tim Carver to hit into a force play and retired Sizemore to end the inning.

Second time Miller no-hits SR

DANVILLE — George Cockerton is calling it "the kiss of death." And he meant every word of it.

"The kids had a total mental feeling about the game. It was individual motivation all the way," said Cockerton.

Especially on the part of junior pitcher Brad Miller who no-hit rival San Ramon, Tuesday 1-0, the No. 1 ranked team in the East Bay before an overflow crowd.

"I felt good about this one," explained Miller, who only two weeks ago no-hit California. "I just got the ball over the plate and wanted them to hit it. I knew I had a good defense behind me."

Particularly shortstop Kevin Jones. With two out in the last of the seventh inning, Jones stretched to his right and robbed Pappalardo of a hit to left field. It was a remarkable play and a story-book ending to an outstanding team performance by Monte Vista, which moved to 10-3. San Ramon dropped to 10-2.

And the pressure is on folks. "We're hoping we're in there," offered Cockerton, whose club hosts Foothill tomorrow. San Ramon travels to Dublin on Friday.

Mats' Mark Davis tries to avoid Pat Driver's glove

Chuck Gangnuss was just running to qualify. But the Dublin High School senior still managed to tie his own 120-yard high hurdles mark in the East Bay Athletic League track trials yesterday on his home track at Dublin.

Gangnuss recorded a 14.6, tying the mark he ran last year and the clocking by Jim Wilson of Albany in 1959.

"I was just taking it easy," the tall Gael star smiled after the race.

Gangnuss took the lead right at the start, gaining a three-stride lead on Amador Valley's Jim Beigel at about the fifth hurdle. He then slowed up as he approached the finish line.

Chuck also qualified in the 330-yard low hurdles,

Dave Frohnen of Monte Vista and Brice Swartzwelder of Amador Valley traded wins in the weight events.

Swartzwelder copped first in the shot put with a 51-6 effort. Frohnen came back to take the discus with a 134-1 1/2 throw. Swartzwelder also finished second in the discus with a 128-9 effort.

Rob Jamieson of Granada won the long jump with an excellent 20-11 1/4 leap. Mike Cerutti of Livermore captured the triple jump with a 40-5 effort, Bill Long of San Ramon won the pole vault with a 11-0 leap and Dan Baldwin of Livermore took the high jump with a 5-8 effort.

Both Long and Baldwin won their events on fewer tle in the final yards of their heat.

There will be no team scoring in tomorrow's meet. The top four athletes in each event will advance to the North Coast Section 4-A meet next week.

running a 40.3. However, Gael teammate Jim Boulware turned in the fastest lows time with a fine 39.5. Both Gangnuss and Boulware eased up at the finish.

The first two finishers in each heat plus the next two fastest times advanced to tomorrow's finals in all three divisions.

Kathy Honour of Granada and Rita O'Connor of San Ramon were two of the stars at the girls' level.

Both runners tied for the fastest time in the 100-yard dash, each clocking an 11.6.

Honour also qualified in the low hurdles, winning her heat. O'Connor blazed to the fastest time in the 440-yard trials, recording a swift 60.5.

Livermore High star Paula Ng had the fastest low hurdles time, however, with a fine 15.6. She and Honour are expected to battle for the long jump title also.

Defending champion Craig Johnson of Foothill was defeated by Dublin's Len Wilson in the heats. Wilson won in 52.6, the fastest time of the day, while Johnson was timed in 52.8.

Chris Huntze of Amador Valley could also be a potent force, having won his heat in 52.7 easily.

Fritz Venker of San Ramon will go against Dublin's Jon Batchelor and Boulware in the 100. Boulware had the day's fastest time with a 10.2 and Batchelor ran a 10.3. Venker had a 10.4 but eased up at the finish.

In the 200 Venker will go against Batchelor and Wes Settle of Livermore.

Parness's barrage leads Granada romp

Bob Parness knocked in five runs and banged three hits to lead an unending Granada parade of runs enroute to a 17-0 win over Foothill yesterday in Pleasanton.

The Matadors' chances of finishing in second place were kept alive as a result of the victory. The Mats, 9-4, trail Monte Vista by a full game and still have an outside chance at the East Bay Athletic League. Unrealistic but true.

Should the Mats win their remaining game with Amador, Monte Vista would have to lose to Foothill and San Ramon must be knocked off by Dublin and California for Granada to have a chance at a tie.

Parness had a pair of two-run singles for the winners, while adding another RBI in the first when he was hit by a Rick Rosenbach pitch with the bases loaded.

Rosenbach and Mike Krikorian toiled on the mound for the losers, although neither deserved the fate they got. Their defense committed eight errors behind them.

The Mats, although not rapping an extra-base hit, backed up well the pitching of Kevin Gosney, who scored his fourth EBAL win against one loss on a fifty-two-hitter.

Gosney surrendered a single to leadoff man Doug Stevenson, then settled down to hold the Falcons hitless until the sixth when the Falcons' top hitter Dan Wilkes laced a hot shot off Gosney's glove.

Granada scored seven times in the first, six in the fifth, and added two runs in each of the second and seventh innings.

The big blows in the Granada first were Vance Rushing's RBI single and Jaryl Hudson's run-scoring base hit.

Mistakes kill Cal as Dons win, 5-4

Despite an impressive comeback the Cal Grizzlies literally threw a game away yesterday afternoon in Pleasanton as Amador pulled out a 5-4 East Bay Athletic League win.

Down 4-0 in the sixth, Cal rallied to tie the score on big hits by Tracy Nodlinski, Pat Fahey and Chuck Cary over the next two innings but the Dons squeaked a run out of a walk, a wild pitch and a throwing error to escape with the triumph.

"I was really proud of the kids coming back," said coach Ed Noble. "The things that killed us were walks and errors. All three of our errors led to runs."

Amador opened the scoring with two in the second on two singles and a long double by Mike Koopman. It went to 4-0 in the fourth when three walks and a Grizzlie error let in one run and a single by Mike Connolly brought in the other.

Nodlinski's double-a shot to deep left center-scored the first Cal run in the sixth and then Fahey singled home pinch-runner Mike Daugherty to make it 4-2. In the seventh Chuck Cary capped a double to deep right center to score two more and tie the game.

However Bret Bevilacqua led off the bottom of the seventh by drawing the last of six walks by Cary and quickly moved to second on a wild pitch. When Mike Connolly laid down a beautiful bunt Cary rushed the throw and tossed the ball down the right field line to allow Bevilacqua to score the winning run.

Rob Wicks went the distance for Amador, allowing 10 hits but only one walk. The Dons made only one error and made all their base hits count as they ran their record to 7-5.

Cal dropped to 3-7 in EBAL play.

EBAL softball

Sister duo sparks AV win

Sisterly teamwork might be a new fad that's catching on in East Bay Athletic League softball play. For the Amador Dons, it's a winning combination.

The Dons, with the help of Susan and Cindy Aafedt, captured first place in the league standings with a 12-9 victory over California High yesterday. The Dons are 7-1, while the Grizzlies slipped to 5-2.

The Amazing Aafedt sisters, batting first and second in the line-up, tallied five runs between them. Catcher Cindy had three hits and one RBI. Second baseman Susan, in five innings of play, accumulated two hits and four RBIs.

But the family affair situation seems infectious. The Grizzlies line-up included a duo from the Beaman clan. Rightfielder Cindy Beaman had one RBI. Playing opposite her in left field was sister Christy who added another RBI.

But with the determined spirit that each team displayed, everyone on the field could have been related. Each inning was like a seesaw match, with each team battling to maintain a dominant position. This was a game that nobody was going to run away with.

At the top of the sixth, California was ahead 9-8. But a home run to left field by Amador's Jayne Kuhns evened the score. The first baseman had a slow start but ended the game with one hit, one homer, and two RBIs. After her walk around the bases, California was unable to score again.

The Dons went on to score three more runs in the seventh and eliminate Cal.

Amador centerfielder Sheryl Withoft halted a fifth inning scoring spree by the Grizzlies with a diving last out or score catch. She had a base hit and added another RBI.

Dons pitcher Pam Rainsdon, who is replacing the injured Deanna Morengo, allowed only four hits, and walked six. This is her second win of the season. Losing pitcher Laura Lorin gave up 17 hits and walked only four. Lorin also drove in a run for her team.

The teams were equally matched in errors, each with six. But they were costly, as each team scored two runs a piece off of errors.

Amador had a host of MVP's with shortstop Debbie Oxsen leading the field. She slammed four base hits in five at bats, with three RBIs. All nine of the Dons got at least one base hit.

Cal's outstanding player was shortstop Patricia Dulick, with one base hit, a stand-up double, and 2 RBIs. She scored two runs as well. Another Grizzle team star was centerfielder PJ Moore who scored three runs, and accounted for one of the base hits.

The game, for all its intensity, lasted 1:30.

The sister act may be catching on after all. It seems to be a hit.

In another EBAL softball contest San Ramon scored a run in the bottom of the ninth to nip Monte Vista, 9-8.

Dianna Botten scored from second base on an infield error for the winning run.

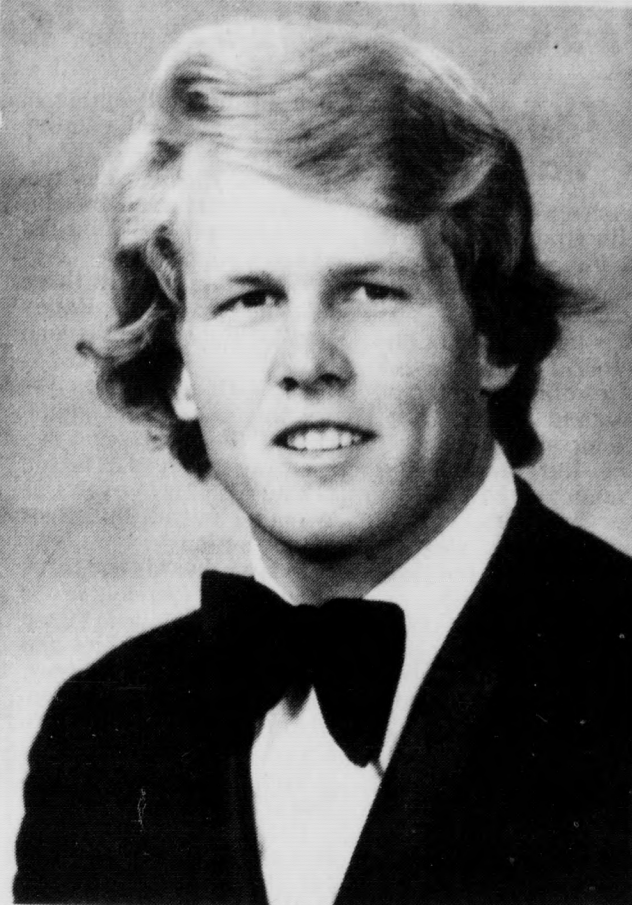

It was Monte Vista's third straight loss in extra innings. The Mustangs are 1-3 and San Ramon is 5-3.

Janet Racautos was the winning pitcher and Nancy DiMaggio took the defeat.

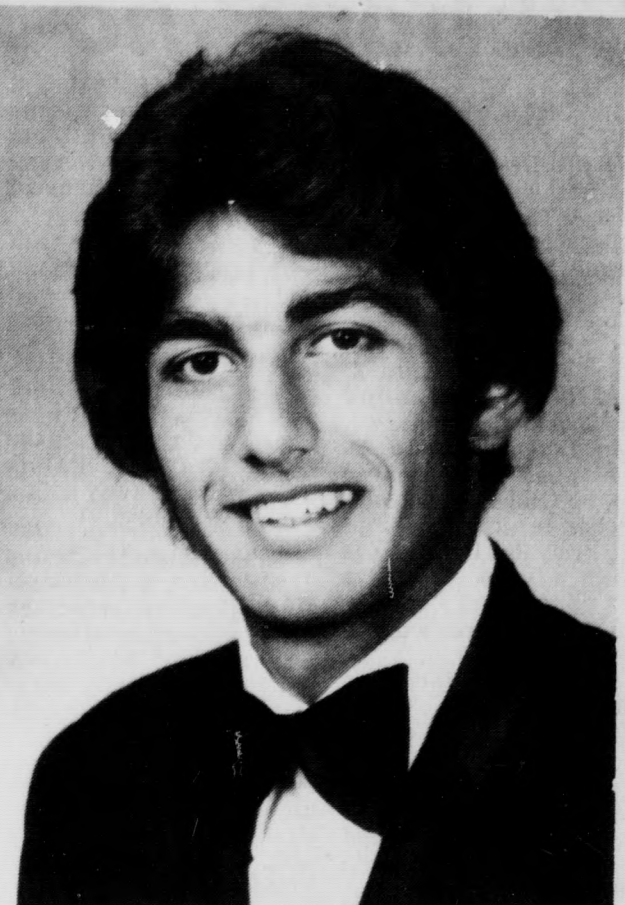

Barbara Huddleston had four hits (including two bunt singles) to lead the winners. Bev Elbert had a two-run home run for the Mustangs.

Booster Award Nominees

Gary Tennyson

Manzar Iqbal

Livermore High Booster nominee Gary Tennyson has established himself as one of the Bay Area's best wrestlers, as well as an all-EBAL athlete in football.

A four year veteran in both sports, Tennyson was named Most Valuable Player this winter on the wrestling team after going undefeated during the league season. He also anchored the Cowboys' defensive line in football from his tackle position last fall, earning a berth on the all-league unit. Last year, as a junior, he made second team all-EBAL, also as a defensive tackle.

Tennyson rates Livermore's 6-3 victory over cross town rival Granada in football this year as his most satisfying experience in sports, along with a "Most Pins" award he earned in wrestling. He was also voted as Best Lineman on his junior varsity team as a sophomore.

Gary earned a 3.7 Grade Point Average, with woodworking his favorite hobby, as he spends many evenings at Livermore High in woodshop night courses. Gary plans to attend either Ohlone or Chabot College next year.

Manzar Iqbal, a senior at Granada High School has been very active in Granada's sports program. Manzar has won many honors in tennis and soccer, including the 1976 Fleeto Award for soccer, first team ALL EBAL honors, Herald and News Player of the Week and first place in tennis singles at Granada. Manzar has been on the varsity tennis team all four years and on the varsity soccer team the last 3 years. He was the second leading scorer in the EBAL this year and also made the United States Field Hockey team. Manzar plans to go to U.C. Berkeley and major in Business Administration. His all around GPA is 3.3.

Bobick, Norton in "battle for survival"

NEW YORK — Ken Norton, who believes in the theory of mind over matter, and Duane Bobick, untested but outwardly undaunted about his first big test as a pro, fight tonight in Madison Square Garden.

"Your mind has to be ready," said Norton. "Anything the mind can conceive, the body can achieve."

So far, he has twice failed to achieve the heavyweight championship of the world, being knocked out in the second round by George Foreman and losing a disputed 15-round decision to Muhammad Ali. And a loss to Bobick would almost certainly put that achievement beyond Norton's reach.

"Once the bell rings everything is great," was the unbeaten Bobick's reaction when asked how he felt before this major test which would make him a boxing "gold mine" in terms of appeal for a fight with Ali. The champion is openly rooting for Bobick.

Bobick not only is unbeaten, but he would be billed as a "White Hope," a label he disdains, pointing out his manager, former champion Joe Frazier, and trainer, Eddie Futch, are black.

Futch, who once trained Norton, agreed with his former charge that mental condition is important and he thinks Bobick's frame of mind has been helped by the postponement of the bout. It originally was scheduled for March 2 but was postponed when Bobick suffered torn rib cartilage while sparring with brother Rodney.

"It helped him a great deal because during the layoff he was preparing himself mentally," said Futch.

Norton disagreed. "I think it would have been more advantageous to Bobick to fight the first time," said Norton, adding that he got himself motivated during the layoff.

Norton weighed in Tuesday at 222½ pounds for the scheduled 12-round fight. He weighed 217½ when he lost to Ali Sept. 28. Bobick weighed 215½.

The fight will be televised nationally by NBC from 9-11:30 p.m., EDT, with the main event set for about 10:30.

Norton was a 12-5 favorite locally and his edge would seem to be based on the strength of having met better fighters. "Who's he fought," is the knock against Bobick, who has 38-0 record with 32 knockouts.

But Futch notes that Norton "outside of the fights with Ali and Foreman (Norton lost two of three against Ali) hasn't fought anybody better than Duane has fought. Quarry (Norton stopped Quarry in five rounds in 1975) had come out of retirement and had 10 days to get ready for the fight. I made most of the other fights so I know."

Norton, who has a 37-4-0 record, fought Larry Middleton last year before his fight with Ali and stopped him on a cut mouth in the 10th round. Middleton is the only common opponent, having lost a lopsided 10-round decision to Bobick early last year, and he thinks Bobick will beat Norton.

Livermore National

Ben Brezeale doubled and cracked three singles, driving in three runs, as American Sports Supply rolled to a 16-0 win over the Gledertowners in Livermore National Seniors Little League play last week.

David Heren, Vince Avila, Dan Pesik and Tony Farmer each had a pair of hits and RBI, while Ray Adams stroked two singles and a pair of RBIs.

John Dalrymple and Greg Watkins got the only two hits for the losers, as Howard Vasalech was magnificent in hurling two-hit shutout.

Gaters host Cleveland

OAKLAND — The Golden Gaters face their first Eastern Division foe in World Team Tennis action tonight at 7:30 p.m. when they host the Cleveland Nets at the Coliseum Arena.

The Gaters, now 3-2, will have another unique promotion going tonight. In a sport which does not lend itself to giveaway days, the club will be giving away Inneret Grips to the first 1000 fans to come through the gate.

The match will mark the first Bay Area playing appearance of Swedish star Bjorn Borg in three years. Scheduled to play in the San Jose Grand Prix, sponsored by American Home Shield of Pleasanton, Borg withdrew due to a muscle pull.

Borg will take the court tonight against Tom Okker, recently returned to the Gaters from tournament play. The Nets, who have beaten only the Nastase-less Los Angeles Strings bring a 1-5 record into the Coliseum.

In addition to Borg, player-coach Marty Riessen — a former Ohio collegiate whiz — Bob Gillesen, Wendy Turnbull, Peggy Michel and Borg's fiancée Mariana Simionescu make up the Cleveland roster. The Gaters hold an 8-5 all-time edge over the Nets.

GATER NOTES: The Gaters signed John Holladay to a one-year contract to fill the open spot left on the roster by John Lucas, who remains with the Houston Rockets of the National Basketball Association. John's sister Terry is already on the Gater roster. The current homestand continues Friday with the Phoenix Racquets, then comes a Fresno date with the Indiana Loves and a showdown with The Soviets next Thursday. Tom Okker picked up $11,000 in advancing with partner Wojtek Fibak to the semis at Kansas City. Tonight's match will be broadcast over KNBR-680 AM at 8:05 p.m.

Down happy trials with a prolific author

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The film world's most successful author may well be the still lovely great-grandmother from Uvalde, Tex., Dale Evans Rogers.

Her publisher claims that her books have sold almost four million copies in 24 years. Her 16th volume, "Trials, Tears and Triumphs," will probably push her over the top. It's the logging of her Bicentennial year travels; during one three-week period her mother died and Dale's first great-grandchild was born.

"I dedicate the book to Roy, because he lets me travel," the 64-year-old cowgirl remarked. "I go around the country to sell my books, make singing appearances, visit churches and give Christian witness."

"As I say in the dedication, Roy is often asked why he lets me travel so much. His answer is: 'Dale enjoys it; her faith is her life.'"

And so Dale will be hitting the road once more to talk about her new book and her Christian way of life. She was here briefly from her Apple Valley home, and she discussed how she happened onto a literary career.

"I've never had a ghost-written book," she declared.

"When I was in high school, my best grades were in English and composition. I even tried my hand at writing short stories after I graduated, and I sent them off to the Woman's Home Companion and other magazines. They all came back, of course."

"I turned to writing lyrics of songs, and I had better luck. I couldn't guess how many songs I've written, and some have done very well. Like 'Happy Trails,' Roy always signed his autograph, 'Happy trails,' so I figured he should have a song with that title. It was heard every week for five years on NBC when we had our television series."

"I even wrote a song that Gene Autry recorded. I got $5,000 in royalties, so you know that Gene sold a lot of records."

Her first book and largest seller, "Angel Unaware," came after the death of her 2-year-old Mongoloid child, Robin.

"The fan magazines had been asking me to talk about Robin, but I was reluctant," she recalled. "Nobody talked about Mongoloid children in those days, Roy was then No. 1 at the box office, and I worried that the publicity might hurt his career."

She started writing Robin's story three days after the little girl's death and finished in October. Dale went to New York still undecided whether to have the book published.

"I asked myself, 'Is this God's will? Can it help other Mongoloid children and their bewildered parents?'" I went to Central Park and asked, 'God, give me a sign.' As I sat there, I felt a great sense of peace. Then I saw a woman walking toward me with a Mongoloid child — at a time when such children were kept out of public view. I knew I had the answer."

She enlisted the aid of Norman Vincent Peale, who directed her to Revell publishers. Fifteen books later, Dale is still writing.

Indian festival jammed

Gloomy weather couldn't slow down the all-day American Indian Arts and Crafts Festival and Pow-Wow held Saturday at Junction Avenue School.

According to Marie Jamison of the Society of American Indians, the festival was crowded but "just beautiful," with all-day native entertainment, handcrafted items for sale and Indian food served to enthusiastic visitors.

The pow-wow, held after the end of the selling and entertainment program, was Livermore's first such gathering. It was an informal meeting of festival participants, who came from many parts of the Bay Area and other parts of the West, and local people.

A crowd estimated at 5,000 attended. Winners of the second annual Indian art contest — elementary students who had produced drawings and paintings on Indian themes included:

First through fourth grades: Jeff Martin of Sonoma School, who pictured a hunter, first place; Kevin Anderson and Matt Sonatana, both of Marylin School, who drew totem poles, second and third place.

Fifth through eighth grades: David McRay of Junction School, who made a pencil drawing of a warrior, first place; Carrie Cider of Jackson School, who used watercolors and cotton balls to create an Indian village scene, second place; David Ojeda of Marylin School, whose dancer placed third.

Honorable mention went to Randy Richie and Barbie Flanders, both of Michell School, whose model Indian villages will be on display, along with all other contest entries, at the American Indian Center, 577 North Livermore Ave.

Members of the Society of American Indians served as judges. Sonoma School teacher Ruth Severin received special thanks for encouraging entries at her school and mounting and laminating the Sonoma children's drawings for permanent display at their school.

Sunol dude ranch faces new setback

PLEASANTON — Another setback, perhaps a major one, appears to be looking Bill Apperson in the eye in his plans to build a dude ranch in the Sunol Valley hills.

The city council may cancel its contract with Apperson to be the public sewage agency which will monitor the private sewer plant he plans to install.

There are at least two votes on the council to do it — Frank Brandes and Joyce LeClaire. Mayor Robert Philcox and Council Member William Herlihy oppose the contract's cancellation. The key vote belongs to Ken Mercer, who said he will need time to review the agreement with Apperson.

Brandes introduced the motion late Monday night at the city council meeting. The city is on record as opposing Carl Nipper's Pleasanton Ridge development near Sunol partly because it involves installation of one more sewer plant in the Valley, a private one, outside an existing municipality.

To be consistent, the city should oppose Apperson's plan, too, and drop its agreement to be the state-required public agency to monitor the plant, said Brandes. The contract with Apperson has a 90-day cancellation clause for either party.

Wide-eyed Tara Garcia listens to the drums.

Wayne Stars In 'Cowboys'

John Wayne stars as a rancher who is saddled with 11 young boys as his only hired hands in a 400-mile cattle drive, in "The Cowboys," on "The CBS Wednesday Night Movies," Wednesday at 8:30 p.m. on Channels 5 and 10.

The film co-stars Roscoe Lee Browne, Bruce Dern and Colleen Dewhurst.

After a gold strike drains all the men away from the area, rancher Wil Anderson is forced to hire and train 11 boys to help him move his 1,200 head of cattle to the nearest railroad, 400 miles away.

The boys are green recruits, but once on the trail, they start to pick up an education in more than just cattle driving. They meet a group of traveling prostitutes, then later steal some whiskey for a night of adolescent revelry, and finally are confronted by the notorious cattle rustler Long Hair and his gang.

"So as of last year, we started to ease him out a little bit, emphasize the other kids in the show and the fact they're also growing up, have lives and problems of their own," he said.

The series, when it began, depicted the Depression era. It has reflected the passage of a year in America in each of its five seasons on CBS. Next fall, it'll show the Waltons in the year 1939. "The show in many ways is like a serial because of this yearly progression, and now we're getting into the war years and how that affects various members of the family," Rich said.

Whatever happens as the younger Waltons grow up, there'll never be an episode about any of them living away from the Walton homestead.

"No, we're never going to do shows like that," Rich said. "We find the way 'The Waltons' works is with the family as a group. We may take the family somewhere else, perhaps on a vacation."

"But it's got to be as a family unit."

Stars: John Byner, Bruce Kirby, Sid Haig, and others.

10:20 NOVA "The Tongues of Men" Part I. "Disaster at Babel" The first of two one-hour films about the diversity of band, will start next season as a widower.

While it hasn't been decided yet how future storylines will explain the wife's death, Rich said, "We're not going to get maudlin about it because it's like a death in any family."

"There'll be reminders from time to time, as in any home where someone passes away, that'll make them remember their mother."

Miss Hyland appears in only four of eight episodes filmed for airing this season. No episode mentions any illness afflicting Joan Bradford, the role played by Miss Hyland.

In the case of "The Waltons," the explanation of John Boy's departure already has aired, Rich said. The lad, now a young man, left the Blue Ridge Mountains of Virginia for New York to try his hand as a professional writer.

Rich said filming of this season's episodes was done with the knowledge that actor Richard Thomas was leaving the program to try his luck in other acting roles.

Recycling ok, but question on city pickup

LIVERMORE — A recycling task force of volunteers who would refine a plan to cut this city's dumping of trash by 25 per cent was unanimously approved Monday by city council.

Recycling center manager Lois Hill recently proposed a source separation pickup plan that City Manager Bill Parness said could be reviewed by a five-to-seven member group within four months and then "sell that plan to the citizens of Livermore."

He was instructed to complete details of the task force's formation.

Parness envisions a group that is representative of a variety of interests, including the recycling center, chamber of commerce, city energy committee, League of Women Voters, the high schools, etc. Oakland Scavenger's local operations, known as the Livermore Disposal Service Company, would be asked to serve in an advisory non-voting capacity. A city staff member would be assigned for liaison purposes.

Responsibilities of the group could include:

- protesting community attitudes toward recycling.
- advising city council on a practical approach to recycling.

— speaking before various organizations to urge compliance with the program.

— developing other promotional programs.

Councilman Glen Dahlbacka praised Parness for the "excellent report" and exclaimed pleasure at the alternative of starting a municipal garbage collection service if the cost is comparable.

Terry Rossow, 786 Catalina Dr., told council Parness's report failed to include in the listing of private company advantages for garbage collection the franchise fee collected and income taxes which would be sifted back to the community.

Mayor Helen Tirsell agreed the task force should look into such considerations and questioned what would happen if a city owned garbage truck broke down.

"We wouldn't have a large fleet" for backup, she said.

Ben Cerruti, 1103 Bordeaux St., advised council against going into another business, noting "it has been proven that it costs government more to operate a business than private enterprise."

"Governments do not operate on a profit motive and therefore they do not always have the incentive to keep their operating costs down unless forced to do so by limiting their source of revenues," he said.

Cerruti noted political pressures and inability of New York City to handle a garbage strike of municipal employees which resulted in garbage piles in the streets.

"Perhaps the most convincing argument against municipally operated garbage service is that it would require the development of a whole new enterprise by this city," he added, listing, "purchase of trucks and other operational equipment, servicing for the equipment, a service yard, storage buildings, administrative personnel, hiring of employees, insurance and pension benefits, a billing and collection system, servicing of complaints and arrangements for long term disposal of the garbage."

Football costs city one cop

LIVERMORE — A premonition by City Manager Bill Parness that a city employee would be hurt in the second annual police-firefighter tackle football game came true Saturday and council members expect to give the matter a closer look when next meeting with representative of the police and fire unions.

Police Sgt. Leonard Wicksten was in a kick off return formation at the beginning of the second half when he was clipped, sending the watch commander to the hospital for knee surgery.

The firefighters were penalized 15 yards for the clipping. Wicksten was penalized with a cast for the next six weeks, followed by physical therapy.

"There will be no running or jumping fences for Wicksten for a while," said a police friend, who visited the injured officer yesterday and described him as being in "good spirits."

"He'll be off duty until a doctor releases him for light desk duty."

Parness told council Wicksten would be off duty approximately two months. "We can't afford losses like this," he said, noting the problem with lack of personnel in both police and fire departments.

"How about them playing chess," quipped Mayor Helen Tirsell, noting the issue of the taxpayers' dollars which pay for unnecessary injuries.

The police won that game 6-0, scoring in the first few moments.

Specialty parks up for study

LIVERMORE — Local groups wanting off-road motorcycle parks, skateboard parks and a transportation museum are discussing their proposals this week with officials of Livermore Area Recreation and Park District, which will be presented with another museum project tonight.

LARPD General Manager Bill Payne is expected to give a status report on the motorcycle and skateboard park ideas, presented by enthusiasts of those sports last month.

LARPD officials are expected to join the Heritage Guild Thursday, when Architect Bob McCabe will outline requirements of remodeling for the proposed Duarte Garage museum.

The Heritage Guild unsuccessfully tried to get $50,000 funding from Proposition 2 monies being distributed throughout the state for various parks and historic preservation projects.

LARPD directors will also consider a proposal by Jackie Fitzgerald, 746 Grace St., for a "Living Museum or an Environmental Center."

She envisions the museum offering programs to help people "to understand and appreciate the land, its creatures and its resources."

"People will not protect and treat kindly what they do not know and appreciate," she said, noting "the world of nature is rapidly disappearing... crowded housing tracts obscure the countryside, polluted air blots out the sky... megalopolis - mania is here and growing."

Fitzgerald proposes a natural setting to enable outdoor classes.

In other agenda items, LARPD directors will:

— Review policies for the use of Livermore Valley Stadium, including priorities of use, scheduling and fees.

— Hear a status report on Proposition 2 funding.
